

I added 3 different genres for the dropdown menu, jazz, pop, and rock. I made it so they follow a specific formula for generating types of chords. When I go live, I see my genre dropdown menu there and my generate progression button, I still need to make the chords displayable and for them to make sound. I really appreciate how easy Tonal.js makes it to use musical terms in my code, I'm still trying to learn how I can make the chord progression more randomized. I think I will need to add templates within each genre to give some different options.